Developer testing reveals that clicking the “Delete” button in Google AI Studio only removes a local JSON file from the interface/Google Drive, failing to delete the actual conversation data or topic summaries from the backend. Even after emptying the trash, server-side data and context remain intact. Google AI Developers Forum +3

On the Google AI Developers Forum, a consensus among developers has emerged regarding this data retention behavior. The controversy specifically highlights that when queries and session parameters are seemingly deleted, the backend server-side session remains active, meaning the AI can instantly resume the chat if the deleted session file is restored. Google has reportedly responded to these findings by altering the warning labels on the UI rather than implementing full backend data removal. Google AI Developers Forum +4
